

Google Profit Scam Recovery System

For those of you out there that were fooled into believing that $1.97 and a disc would change your career, guess again. From experience I can tell you that this is just a ploy to make you spend money on other Google related products. The information on their website after I signed up was lengthy, but interesting in their approaches to the issue of making $$$. <http://www.googleprofitresource.com/>. If you have a login, then you get to see what I mean. Please don't purchase this, as I'll go through the basic chapters they talk about. There are a total of 8 steps to success.

Introduction to Affiliates: Sounds easy and it is. Common affiliates are Amazon, Google AdSense, & just about any other website who will pay a small commission for "Clicks" on their ads or purchases. These are the ones that make money, not much, but some. We're looking at pennies per day if you have your own website. The trick is to support items that people want to buy. This comes in the form of links and banners, text banners and product reviews. Some of the affiliates to avoid are: Clickbank, commissionjunction, & linkshare. They're offering fraudulent products and misleading offers leading to phishing and other internet crimes.

Finding a website to promote: This is not as easy as it sounds. Millions of websites out there are borderline scams. The marketing ploys these days are vastly superior and very eye-catching to boot. The best and absolute way to promote a website is to try and contact the owner of the site. Request an affiliate program for selling your products and promoting theirs. Also, there are certain other benefits, like data bases of opt-in email addresses, that you could purchase for less than 20 dollars. Rather than find a website to promote, seek out what people are buying these days.

Adwords account: Unless you are willing to pay a couple dollars per day or more, count this feature out. I've tried this on a paying basis and can personally tell you that it's not worth it. Two dollars a day will get you page 10 on any Google search. Who checks page 10? Odds are that 1 in a million "Searchers" will encounter your site. Having billions of surfers helps increase these odds, however, 10 in a million isn't much better. Eventually, the monthly charges exceed the AdSense income & associated affiliates.

Managing your account is easy if you opt-out like stated above. Having the spirit to continue with this involves the great time-consuming effort of figuring out all the menus, links and the like. Once you enter your maximum of 2000 keywords, it could be several days later. And to make matters worse, keywords change frequently. All the time spent updating will add countless hours to your agenda. My advice, stick without the adword stuff & save your money. I'm going to skip a few steps, so bear with me. These steps are not necessary and will not affect your results.

Tools for success: One of the main tools here is called a Campaign ad. Without this you can guarantee that no one will see or be directed to your site. These ads are posted every time you search a specific keyword, like "PS3". If your ad does not have the exact keywords, Good-bye first page results. Better off doing a search on "Keywords for PS3" or similar. This may tell you the words needed to add to your campaign ad.

Articles for campaigning and blog: Writing interesting articles like this one will not only forward credible viewers called "Hits" to your site, it'll generate an interest in the website subject related content you wish to talk about. Make sure your site is on topic or has different pages to many subjects that can be enjoyed. Avoid graphic banners or pop-up window ads because this is a natural deterrent. Text ads seem to work much better. If all possible add small picture clips to enhance graphic details in relation to subject. Next we focus on links. Remember that links will guide your viewers to another website, away from yours, so unless you have an affiliate linked to your website, you're directing traffic elsewhere. The idea is "Stickyness", or get visitors to stay on your site for extra amount of time gobbling up all the data they can get, more like a cyber buffet. All that you can eat for "X" amount of time so to speak.

Combatting this is not easy and there are many phone calls to make. Start by monitoring your credit card purchases. Most Credit Card services offer online accounts and you get to see what is being charged to your account. What I did was this: When the charges appear, call directly to your credit card hotline and dispute it. Some cards are rejecting the dispute, however there is another solution and you don't have to talk to anyone. Don't cancel the card thinking that this will solve it because it won't. The charges will only elevate and ruin your credit.

Bless the internet for this one, Online disputing. I've been rejected numerous times and still got out of the charges. We'll have to wait until your card starts its new billing cycle, then select dispute online, type in your reasons and hit ENTER. While you'll still more than likely have to pay the outstanding bill to keep your credit rating intact and avoid fees for not paying it off, the charge(s) will be put through a "Chargeback" mode. I haven't had one fraudulent charge not removed. These places find that if you don't dispute them, they make money and if you do, too bad.

Remember that next time something sounds too good to be true, search Google or Yahoo for Example: "Google Profits SCAM". Always use the "SCAM" on the end of it to see countless pages of grief & gripes. This world has nothing better to do than to make money the illegal ways or destroy your future with Phishing techniques & Spyware.
